Gabicce Mare is not only "sea", but ideal starting point for trips in the green hinterland to discover fascinating places rich in art and history The "monte" of Gabicce is part of the Natural Park of San Bartolo, a must for nature walks admiring the breathtaking view. Gabicce Monte, Vallugola Bay, Casteldimezzo, Fiorenzuola di Focara, Santa Marina Alta, are the destinations for the visits of nature lovers.

Monday, 22 April 2019:
MAIOLO (km 134,22 round trip)

The present village of Maiolo, located on the middle valley of the Marecchia river, is a scattered mountain town that has taken its place, inheriting its name, of the homonymous village near it, destroyed, according to a legend wrapped in an aura of mystery, in a night of late May of 1700 from a ruinous landslide that still intrigues the geological and historical.
Until 1700, the ancient Maiolo was a populated and flourishing country, surmounted by a massive fortress surrounded by walls and towers, strategic point of the village and the entire Val Marecchia.
Today, only two mighty polygonal towers remain on the top of the mountain, from which the entire Marecchia valley dominates, while today's village is in a nearby town called Serra. Today Maiolo preserves its villages, its old farmhouses, the squares and has not let itself be infected by the wild condominium buildings. The dazzling beauty of the sunsets, the look that ranges from Mount Fumaiolo to the Alpe della Luna, Mount Carpegna, the towers of San Leo, the towers of San Marino to the sea, make Maiolo a unique vantage point of the Marche region and of Montefeltro.
The city is famous above all for its characteristic bread, produced with local flours and with traditional methods, to which a special annual fair, the Bread Festival, is dedicated at the end of June.

PROGRAM:
08:00 Departure in group of cyclists for Maiolo: with a stop and refreshment in Maiolo where the GRANFONDO DEL MARE-RACE will leave.
At the Astra Cinema Theater in Viale della Repubblica, 20, Gabicce Mare
17:00 Technical meeting
21:00 Screening of a film dedicated to cycling.

Excursion to MONTEFABBRI/Vallefoglia (km 63,23 road trip)

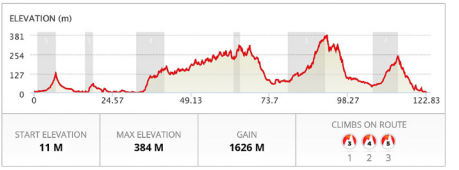

The name Montefabbri, of uncertain origin, presumably derives from Monte Fabrorum, or the castle of the Fabbri family.
History
VII-VIII century, the descent of the Franks coincided with the formation of the parishes, like one of San Gaudenzio. XII century, in the territory of the parish church of San Gaudenzio there are four castles, one of which is that of Montefabbri. XIII century, the fortunes of the castle are linked to those of the lords of Urbino and Rimini, i Montefeltro and the Malatesta, who were competing back then. XIV century, alternation of power between the Montefeltro and the church. XV century, the castle of Montefabbri enters more and more in the orbit of the Duchy of Urbino, for whom was supplied soldiers and captains. 1578, the Duke of Urbino nominates count of the fief of Montefabbri the civil and military architect Francesco Paciotti. In the1744, the village passed definitively to the State Papal. 1862, with the opening of a police station and the killing of the criminal Terenzio Grossi, an end to local banditism, aimed at the restoration of the government Pontifical against the unitary state. 1869, Montefabbri lose its administrative autonomy and is annexed to the Municipality of Colbordolo. Humble little houses, close to each other, are enclosed in the circle of the castle walls of this small village that stands out lonely along the ancient road that connects Pesaro and Urbino. In the deep fantasy of open space of the hills silence broken by birdsong and by the sound of the bells. They are days of vivid grasses, country lanes, of small talk in the only bar, those that pass in Montefabbri. A picture left unchanged over the centuries. A landscape that could be the background of a painting of the Renaissance period, since a few steps from here was born the father of Renaissance, Raffaello Sanzio. A village that leaves you stunned: not only because it is beautiful (which means simple, intimate, collected: not expect great things) but, literally, because in the church of San Gaudenzio guards the scagliole, that is the oldest stucco decorations in the Marche region. The place is an excellent starting point for the art cities of Urbino, Gradara, San Leo, but also suitable for living nature in all seasons.

MONDAVIO (km 122,83 round trip)

Symbol of the village of Mondavio is the Rocca Roveresca, built between 1482 and 1492, which constituted an impregnable fortress for the whole territory. La Rocca now houses the Museum of Historical Reenactment and Armory, with white and firearm weapons from the period of the rover, in the moat there are some war machines faithfully reconstructed on the basis of drawings by Francesco di Giorgio Martini, the architect who designed and erected the Rocca. The ideal itinerary to discover the history of Mondavio begins with a visit to the civic art gallery located inside the Franciscan cloister. The Civic Art Gallery houses numerous paintings, furnishings and furnishings mainly from religious buildings. Particular attention deserves rare editions from the fifteenth to the seventeenth century from the library of Capuchin friars, who settled in Mondavio in the 1557. Among the valuable works there are incunabula (15th century movable prints) and Cinquecentine. The visit to the Apollo Theater which rises on the northwest walls, with entrance from Piazza della Rovere. The theater dates back to the late eighteenth century and was obtained from a previous church dedicated to San Filippo Neri, the theater was completely renovated in 1887 following the aesthetic canons of the belle époque. Returning working after the restoration, it hosts a remarkable theatrical season. The visit to the Insigne Collegiata building which was founded in the 14th century, but was renovated in 1563 by Bartolomeo Genga. The dedication of the church to Saints Peter and Paterniano, dates back to 1444 and derives from the unification of two parishes distant from each other, while the elevation to Insigne Collegiata is from 1741, when it was necessary to expand the church because it had become the most important in the area . Inside are works of exquisite workmanship such as the guardian angel of the eighteenth-century Bottani. And finally a visit to the Church of San Francesco. Tradition has it that the church was built by the will of St. Francis of Assisi on the occasion of his stop at Mondavio in the thirteenth century. The current internal structure corresponds to the reconstructions of the eighteenth century while the facade has preserved the austerity and simplicity that have always distinguished the buildings of the Franciscan Order. The interior of the church preserves valuable works; among all the most important is a table depicting the "immaculate conception" of the painter Giuliano Presutti.

In the valley of Metauro, on the route of the ancient Via Flaminia, lies Fossombrone, a beautiful city full of history, whose name derives from Forum Sempronii, an ancient Roman center that was known for a period of splendor in the imperial era. The ideal itinerary to discover the most characteristic spots of Fossombrone begins with a walk in the heart of the historic center: Corso Garibaldi. In the "Quadreria" you can admire works by Carpi, Morandi, Severini, Fussi, Messina, Tosi.
